

TINTINNABULATORS MODERNIZE MUSIC

New Inventions for Producing Melody Shown at Summer Carnival.

INDOOR GOLF, TOO

Miss Shirley Moore Chosen Queen by Three Masked Judges.

Another phase of "Home, Sweet Home" was shown at the Summer School Carnival Friday night when the girls of Pemberton Hall put on a stunt with a broom, rolling pin, wash-board, coffee-grinder, and a clothes hamper much in evidence. A mysteriously hidden musician played the old familiar air, while the girls tunelessly performed on their domestic utensils.

In the program this stunt was declared to be approved by the domestic science department and by Professor Pommer. At any rate, it was approved by the 900 persons present when from out of the clothes hamper the musician arose. The musical instrument was a mouth organ. Spooks, silent songs and combs wrapped with tissue paper all helped the Twenty-six Tuneful Tintinnabulators' musical act.

Give Demonstration of Golf.

The latest and most approved etiquette of the game of golf was shown in a take-off on University professors. J. C. MacArthur, J. G. May, O. S. Fuqua and J. E. Schofield, in the Dana Press Club stunt impersonated members of the faculty and a caddy on the golf links in an original burlesque.

A Dutch monologue given by John C. Staple was one of the attractions on the program. Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Cole, who have appeared on Chautauqua programs and who are attending the Summer Session here, sang two songs, "You and I" and "First Quarrel."

The two numbers of the male quartet were much applauded. The quartet is composed of L. I. Morris, J. E. Turley, G. T. Sasse, and J. C. Staple. W. W. Browne gave an exhibition of pole vaulting in the athletic part of the program. S. A. Fuqua gave an exhibition of swinging Indian clubs. There was a basketball game played between the Fats and the Leans.

Miss Shirley Moore the Queen.

Three "wise" men cloaked and masked in order to keep their identity a secret, were the judges who elected the Carnival Queen from those present. After solemn and weighty consideration, with many gestures and consultations, Miss Shirley Moore was picked out and crowned by the leader of the "wise" men. Miss Moore led the first dance of the evening.

The dancing lasted until midnight. A three-piece orchestra furnished the music. The carnival was given for the benefit of the Varsity Baseball League. The receipts will be used to buy watch fobs for the players of the winning team and to defray the expenses of the league during the summer.

School Board Retires Bonds.

The school board of Columbia burned ten $1,000 school bonds last week. They were issued in 1903. The school board now has $9,500 on hand with which to retire more bonds.

A Co-Op Message To First Year Students:

SIX weeks from now, you will be a Missouri student. Your first week will be over. And it will prove an interesting one. You will see for the first time the hearty greetings of one Missouri student with another, you will feel the inspiring handshake of a student—a handshake such as one gets only from a real live Missouri man. Here you will meet and be one of those men and women who in the future will be the controlling power of the state. You will meet them here shoulder to shoulder in a place where service to the state is the watchword, where efficiency is the keynote.

Upon your entrance into University life, you will become acquainted with the University Co-Operative Store, the store where students and faculty buy their books, supplies and souvenirs. It is the University store located in the basement of Academic Hall. It was founded for service. Its sole aim now is service to students and to faculty. Read how it fulfills its mission.

The Co-Op Mission

The mission of the University Co-Operative Store is one of service, service to students and faculty. This mission has been fulfilled in the past, and it will continue to be fulfilled in the future to a greater extent. Service is rendered here by a trained force of sales people. The Co-Op has no mechanical clerks. But it has University students who wait on University students.

But the Co-Op performs its mission in another way. It saves money for students and faculty. All net profits are returned to purchasers in proportion to the amount they buy. Next September many students will receive checks from the Co-Op. They will be students who traded at the Co-Op, and who will be getting back their portion of profits. It will be to your interest to ask an old student about the Co-Op, how it operates and how they like the store. We stand by their verdict. They know us. That is why they like us.

Owned by Students

The University Co-Operative Store is owned and controlled by the student body. They own and control it because they elect annually in an open mass meeting the board of directors which has control of the Co-Op. This board consists of five faculty men and four students. The board at present is composed of the following men: Prof. Pickard of the College of Arts and Science, Dean Hinton of the School of Law, Dean Jackson of the School of Medicine, Prof. Defoe of the School of Engineering, Prof. Chandler of the College of Agriculture, C. R. Wilson of the School of Law, R. S. Besse of the College of Agriculture, K. C. Sears of the School of Law and E. V. Gmeiner of the School of Engineering.

These men are representative of the faculty and student body. They have the interests of both at heart. They combine the executive ability of the two great active forces of the University. Consequently there exists a commercial institution, a student institution, noted for efficiency.

A U. S. Postoffice.

One of the greatest conveniences of the Co-Op is due to the fact that it has a Branch Station of the United States Postoffice. Students and faculty avail themselves of this opportunity to buy their stamps, register their letters, obtain postoffice money orders, and mail their parcel post packages. The Co-Op is the only place in the University district where one can obtain P. O. money orders, register letters, or mail parcel post packages. It is the only branch of the postoffice in Columbia, and is maintained solely for the benefit of students and faculty of the University. From our branch mail is taken five times daily to the main office.

Conveniences

In addition to the U. S. Postoffice, with its many time saving items, there are many other conveniences at the Co-Op. We have free fountain pen ink for you, we have a pencil sharpener for you to use. We have a sign painting outfit which students are privileged to use—and many make use of it.

Near our post card racks—all our cards are one cent each—we have a writing table, with chairs, pen and ink for you to use. We will also check your parcel for your rain coat or your umbrella. You will find this a great help to you.

On the first three busy days, if you get tired of the whirl and commotion in the corridors, just step down to the Co-Op. You will find a cool quiet place for a refreshing rest from the excitement.

Personnel

The students at present working at the Co-Op are: John M. Carter, Medic; G. R. Hastings, Medic; Alf Johnson, Journalist; R. E. Watson, Lawyer; Robert Howat, Farmer; A. R. Hurst, Engineer; C. C. Porter, Farmer; E. A. Kibbe, Academic; C. A. Stewart, Medic; J. H. Norrid, Farmer and R. E. Norrid, Academic.

In the Catalogue

The general catalogue of the University states in a few concise words the purpose of the store, its management and its location. This information is on page 88.

NEXT YEAR

We will look for you. When you come, you can locate us at once. We are easily found. Anyone can tell you where we are. Tell us your name, and you will find a hearty handshake awaiting you.

We are students ourselves and know what you want. We know just how you will feel.

Be Sure to See Us.
